WELCOME

Welcome to SYO's 2024 Youth Orchestral Camp (YOC) - Free Community Concert in Gloucester, presented by Learning For Good. After its huge success in 2023, we are so excited to be on our way back to beautiful Armidale for a second year of regional, musical collaboration.

Today's concert is presented by Learning For Good and will feature the talented, young musicians of SYO's Peter Seymour Orchestra. Learning for Good is a next generation education technology company, connecting schools with world-class content. In the past few years, Learning for Good's platform has spearheaded SYO's digital education transformation through the provision of an agile, customised learning management system, and has made SYO accessible to more musicians than ever before.

We are thrilled to be stopping at Gloucester High School to bring you this wonderful community concert before we head to Armidale where over 200 of our talented, young musicians will be collaborating with 50 regional guest musicians for a week of intensive, collaborative, musicmaking. At SYO we are committed to dissolving geographical barriers to participation and believe in access to musical opportunities for all young musicians across NSW.

A NOTE FROM JAMES

It gives me great pleasure to start YOC for a second year with this free community concert in Gloucester. Community building is the essence of YOC, and we look forward to fostering new musical relationships and networks of young musicians and music lovers across NSW.

I look forward to conducting today's concert with this wonderful group of musicians - The Peter Seymour Orchestra. These young people work incredibly hard at their craft, and it is a privilege for me to share their sound with you. Your support directly impacts the sound of our future generations.

I wish to thank Learning For Good for presenting today's concert and acknowledge our generous community of sponsors and donors for their continued support of SYO, and all that we do.
